

WHAT SPONSORED COUPLES ARE SAYING ...

"I wanted to let you know that my husband and I had a wonderful weekend at the Asheville Weekend to Remember! The resort was breathtaking, the staff was top notch, and the event was first class. We thoroughly enjoyed learning more about ourselves, each other, and how to be a stronger couple together as one. The speakers were fantastic and funny too! I think their humor really helps make the material relatable. I was very impressed with the event setup; there seemed to be no hiccups at all, at least not visible to me. We didn't know what to expect going into this weekend, and we're now even bigger supporters of the [Weekend to Remember Sponsorship] program. Thank you for all of your help!"

“YOU CAN’T EXPECT PEOPLE TO DO WELL IN THEIR BUSINESS IF THEY’VE GOT PROBLEMS AT HOME.” —S. Truett Cathy, Chick-fil-A Founder

- When companies consider that happily married workers are healthier, more productive, and result in lowered liabilities, it becomes clear that happily married employees increase profitability.
- When dual-income couples are happily married, they have a greater level of commitment to their employers.
- When companies invest in the physical and relational wellness of their workers, returns on investment can range between $1.50 and $6.85 for every dollar spent on these types of programs.
- For an average employee making $20/hr, the projected cost of that employee divorcing is over $8,000.
